PILE REMEDY.

Piles—What unceasing torments arise from Internal Bleeding, External and Itching Piles. The vain endeavors to obtain even partial relief has discouraged the millions who suffer, and they, having their appetite destroyed by drinking, have no more hope or prospect of a cure. Notwithstanding the total failure of the many remedies heretofore offered for the cure of Piles, and the picture of agony floating on the face of those who have tried them, advertisements but in vain, yet eagerly sought, for and anxiously tried anything that promises the least relief until their constant use has long since given proof to the despondency, let them cheer up, allow the smiles of happiness to illuminate the haggard countenance, and the duties of life will be performed with a degree of happiness and pleasure unknown for months or years. Briggs' Pile Remedies are the result of unceasing study and experimenting, the regular line of medical science, and in every respect safe, scientific and reliable for the cure of piles in every form. Briggs' remedies are sold by C. A. Klein, Bloomsburg, Pa.

$1,000 REWARD

CATARRH is the most universal and distressing disease of the present day, and the worst of wonderful remedies offered for the cure of this disgusting disease, which are worse than worthless has discouraged the millions who suffer and have tried in vain for relief and cure until their confidence is gone and the victim still suffers in doubt. Here we are with Dr. Josiah Briggs' catarrh Specifics Nos 1 and 2, and how shall we proceed to convince that we have the best and cheapest remedies known. 1st—We will furnish them to responsible parties on condition—"no cure no pay." 2nd—Will pay $500 for a case they will not cure. 3rd—Will pay $500 for one we cannot cure. 4th—Will pay $500 if anything poisonous or deleterious is found in their composition. 5th—Will pay $1,000 if in any particular Dr. Josiah Briggs' Catarrh Specifics are found different from representation. Warranted to instantly relieve and radically cure Acute, Catarrh. Chronic or Nervous Catarrh, Cold in the Head, and all affections of the cavities of the head and throat. Two bottles in one box. BUNION BALSAM.

Bunions, Corns and other afflictions of the feet cause much suffering among all nations where boots and shoes are worn. There is more than $100,000 worth of boots and shoes destroyed annually in the United States (in the rest of the world more than $1,000,000) for everything which by, or in any way, to make room for painful bunions, corns, ingrowing nails, sore instep, etc. Besides this great sacrifice, there is paid in New York to chiropodists annually, in London, England and the western and southern about $50,000 and in the rest of the world about $100,000. Besides this there is fear to apply anxiously for cases and other worthless compounds for the cure of Bunions, Corns, Sore Insteps, other feet, etc. To avoid these great losses and expenditures, use Dr. Josiah Briggs' Bunion Balsam and sure Corn Cure, which is the only preparation known that gives immediate relief and radically cures hard, soft and ulcerated Bunions hard, soft and festered corns, vascular excrescences, callosities large and small, sore insteps' blistered heels, tender feet, ingrowing nails, etc., without cutting or leaving any pain or sore ness. Warranted safe and sure. Sold by C. A. Klein, Bloomsburg, Pa.

Dr Josiah Briggs' Catarrh Specifics are offered to those afflicted with acute, chronic, ulcerative or dry catarrh, cold in the head, fever, relaxed palate, sore throat, hoarseness, loss of voice, and all affections of the nasal cavities and throat, with a guarantee that they are cheaper, better, more reliable, more curing quicker, with more certainty, and more agreeable to use than any remedy yet discovered. Two bottles in one box, one of which reduced with water makes 6 ounces for $1.00. Price $1.00 per package, furnished to responsible parties on conditions "No cure no pay." Dealers are authorized to refund the money if purchasers are not satisfied. The specifics are constitutional as well as local. $100 will be paid if they fail to cure when used as directed. $100 for their equal as a cure. $500 if anything poisonous or deleterious is found in their composition. $1,000 will be paid if in any respect Dr. Briggs' Catarrh Specifics are found different from representation. And the timid who fear deception may venture to try these specifics without feeling that they are to be humbugged, as there is no risk to run. Warranted cheapest, best and most agreeable. Poetical.

FATE OF A FAST YOUNG MAN.

WRITTEN IN THE ILLINOIS STATE PRISON.

It's curious, isn't it, Billy,
The changes that twelve months may bring,
Last year I was at Saratoga,
As happy and rich as a king.
I was raking in pools on the races,
And feeling the waiters with "Ten,"
And sipping mint juleps by twilight,
And to-day I am here in the "Pen."

"What led me to do it?" What always
Leads men to destruction and crime?
The prodigal son, whom you've read of,
Has altered somewhat in his time.
He spends his substance as freely
As the biblical fellow of old;
But when it is gone he fancies
The husks turn into gold.

Champagne, a box at the opera,
High steps while fortune is flush,
The passionate kiss of women,
Whose cheeks have forgotten to blush,
The old, old story, Billy,
Of pleasures that end in tears,
The froth that foams for an hour,
The dregs that are tasted for years.

Last night as I sat here and pondered
On the ends of my evil ways,
There arose like a phantom before me
The vision of boyhood days.
I thought of my home, Billy,
Of the school house on the hill,
Of the brook that flowed thro' the meadow
I can e'en hear its music swell.

Again I thought of my mother,
Of the mother who taught me to pray,
Whose love was a precious treasure,
That I heedlessly cast away,
I saw again in my visions
The fresh-hoped, careless boy,
To whom the future was boundless,
And the boy but a mighty toy.

I thought of all this as I sat here,
Of my ruined and wasted life,
And the pangs of remorse were bitter,
They pierced my heart like a knife.
It takes some courage, Billy,
To laugh in the face of fate,
When the yearning ambitions of manhood
Are blasted at twenty-eight.

Select Story.

ROSE FORRESTER'S ESCAPE.

'Everybody envies Rose Forrester.'

The pale girl, in gold-colored silk, lifted the broad lids from her clear eyes for a moment, as the speaker's words reached her ear; then she bent over the photographs upon her lap again.

She handled the pictures with an enthusiastic appreciation of their worth, so absorbed in their examination as to be totally unconscious of the tall, fair man who stood quite near, looking at her with an apparent suddenly awakened interest.

'Belonging to such a nice family, an heiress so beautiful!'

The continued words of the speaker reached Howard Manly's ear, but evidently Rose Forrester did not hear them. She turned with a sparkling smile to her hostess, and was still talking with her of the photographs, when Mr. Clinton brought Howard Manly up for an introduction.

As she rose in the full light it revealed that she was very young, scarcely 20, yet tall of stature and with a certain marked repose of manner.

Her beauty was not conspicuous—she was too pale; yet Manley saw how perfectly cut was every feature, how clear the dark gray eyes, how dark the curling lashes. The lips shut over teeth as white as milk, and the contour of the face was a perfect oval.

The girl's natural and spontaneous manner told that she gave the young man, at first, no unusual attention. Little by little she observed him—the fair hair shadowing the white forehead, the dark blue, penetrating eyes, the unusual grace of figure, the faultless dress.

Her manner was so cordial and friendly and unmistakably charming that Manley racked his brains for the chance of a next meeting, but was obliged to abandon it when Miss Forrester was joined by her brother.

She left the room, but instantly he thanked his good fortune at the finding of a ruby scarf pin which he recognized as hers. It was easy to decide the ornament too valuable to be entrusted to a messenger. It was a presumption which he would manage with ease to call upon and restore it.

Rose was not a belle. She had too much depth and passion of nature to ever be a society woman; but she had her admirers, and out of them she soon chose Manley.

She could not tell why, but his looks, words, every act had a charm for her, and the eloquent blood tinging her cold cheek at his approach told him the story of his power.

He was a proud man—he might well have been a happy one—but he often bore an air of noticeable weariness and depression. This, in answer to Rose's gentle inquiries, he attributed to ill-health.

Spring was opening with its vivid sunshine, its balmy air, and Rose was very happy. It seemed to her that it was the pleasant influence of the season which made her daily ways so light; the tender colors, sights and sound surrounding her daily walk with Manley in the park, which made them so enjoyable.

Perhaps they helped to make her spirit so strong as that she dared say to herself, 'I love him!' and say it without reservation or fear; for she knew that it was but a little while since she first met him, and of his past history and much of his present she knew nothing.

No; she feared nothing for herself. To love and be surrounded with tenderness was happiness enough for her; she asked for no more. Yet some instinct or trace of worldly wisdom made her withhold her confidence from her brother, who was her guardian; he knew nothing of the intimacy.

From the night she had first met Manley at Mrs. Clinton's party, she never knew any one who knew him intimately. He told her that he had no living female relative—no home.

He evidently had means at command, and procured for her, with an ingenuity which was almost genuine, the rarest and most beautiful gifts. Her delighted reception of them seemed a mutual joy which prevented any possible feelings of obligation on her side. In truth, full of the passionate impulses of youth, she was deaf, dumb and blind for anything but the fullness of the present.

Her brother came into the music room, where she sat at the piano, dreamily playing, one day.

'Rose, will you give me your attention for a few minutes?'

He held an open letter in his hand. He was twenty years older than herself, a worldwise prudent man.

'Dr. Wingrove proposes for your hand. You are aware that it will be a very admirable match, are you not?'

Rose had a strange, stunned feeling, yet she bowed faintly. From childhood she had been greatly under her brother's control.

'I should like to write him favorably, Rose. Have you any objection?'

'I—I—'

She found herself upon her feet shivering in the May sunshine.

'I would have a little time, Edwin.'

'Certainly, if you wish,' though his brow slightly clouded. 'The doctor will not probably look for an immediate answer.'

The next moment Rose had escaped from the room, and was locked in her chamber.

During the next two hours she hardly knew what she was doing. She found herself walking the floor, and wringing her hands. At last she stopped short, with a sense of pride.

'There is no reason—no reason in the world I dare tell my brother why I will not marry Dr. Wingrove.'

Dr. Wingrove was the noblest and gentlest of men, singularly handsome, wealthy, and highly connected, and barely 30 years of age. He had known her since childhood, never made love to her, but now that the offer of marriage had come to her, she realized, somehow, that he had always loved her.

Rose was conscious of a racking pain in her temples, at last. The chamber seemed stifling.

Catching up her cloak and hat, and tying a veil of heavy black lace across her face she went out into the street.

She soon walked herself weary, without abating her painful sensation, and, returning to the street in which her residence was situated, entered the public inclosure of trees and shrubbery which ornamented the square. A fountain bubbled in the centre; the stone vases of flowers sent a sweet perfume upon the air.

So close to her home, she had no timidity, and sinking upon a circular seat surrounding a large tree, she gave herself up to her absorbing thoughts.

It was soon dark, yet she had not stirred. In her black dress, in shadow, she was quite unnoticed by two men who crossed the street from the opposite side and sat down behind her

She would then have arisen and glided away quietly, but that the movement was arrested by Howard Manley's voice.

'How soon?' he asked.

'Now, my dear brother, I'll stand the risk no longer. I've passed false money enough for you to shut me up for the rest of my life, and I value my liberty, singularly enough,' sneeringly.

'Well, well, I am willing enough to go, Fred. Heaven knows that I am as sick of the business as you can be. Coining isn't all prosperity. In a new country I should feel like another man. But—'

'The heiress?'

'I am sure of her. But I don't like to urge a hasty marriage' She has an old fox of a brother, who may be inconveniently curious regarding my affairs. If we could wait till the autumn, now, I might enter some respectable business.'

'I tell you it won't do.'

Both rose in their excitement and involuntarily walked away!

Plainly, under the gaslight, Rose saw Howard Manley and his brother pass under the street. They were coiners.

More dead than alive, she crept into the house. But Rose was not a weak girl. Before midnight she had placed Howard's gifts in a close package and sealed them with a note, briefly stating that she had overheard the conversation in the park. The next morning it was dispatched.

As soon as her brother broached the subject of Dr. Wingrove's proposal, she asked to have the latter call upon her.

He came, with countenance so high of purpose, with eyes so full of truth, that she involuntarily contrasted Howard's old, reticent face with it; but she told Mr. Wingrove all the truth.

'Perhaps it was wrong but I loved him—loved him purely—and my heart is torn and bleeding. I am wild with a secret pain which I must hide from every one. If I had never known him! But I cannot imagine that. This terrible experience has changed me; I am not the care-free, happy, trusting girl you knew. I cannot love you; but pity me—be my friend, I must talk to some one, and oh, there is no one in the world so kind as you!'

Was Dr. Wingrove piqued by this reception of his proposal? No, he was too generous and tender hearted for that.

'Poor child!' he said, in a tone so soothing that, for the first time, Rose gave way to a relieving burst of passionate weeping.

'What shall I do? What do you think of me?' she asked at last.

'We will wait, and I think that I love you,' he answered quietly.

So two kept the secret of Rose's sorrow more easily than one, and though her heart still knew the pangs of grief for a time, the summer brought change of scene which was helpful to a spirit really brave and innocent.

Dr. Wingrove joined Rose and her brother at the seashore, to find brightness in the young girl's eyes again, and to the latter it was sweet to call so kind and noble a man friend.

Together they climbed the rocks, drank in the free air, watched the sunsets and the sea. Of old they had been congenial, and now they seemed more happily so.

There is usually a sadness about first love, and perhaps is expected of me to record the death of my heroine of a broken heart, but I must tell the truth.

In the autumn Rose married Dr. Wingrove. She is one of the happiest wives in the world. The first love fell from her like a false blossom, while the second ripened richest fruit.

HOW FISH FIND THEIR OWN RIVERS.

The long-held and only recently rejected theory, that the shoals of fishes moved in a vast mass along the coast, sending off detachments into each river as they pass its mouth, is to be attributed to John Gilpin and some other authorities, who have written flowingly on the subject. The recent careful investigations of naturalists indicate that the anadromous fishes, those entering the rivers and bodies of fresh water from the sea, do not have an extended range in the ocean, and that the river's colony remains, after returning, in the deep waters opposite their river.

The motive for the movement of these shoals of anadromous fishes, or rather how it is incited, has scarcely been explained. The life of the fishes has always been a mystery. It is not a search for food, as they do not eat while in fresh water; the opening of hundreds of stomachs will fail to find food present. It is an easy disposal of the question as to how each colony recognize its native river to say that 'it is instinctive.' So it is, also, when the butcher's horse recognizes the familiar gates; but we have some evidence as to what sense he uses. The fishes, probably, prompted by functional disturbance from the tumid ovaries and spermaries, are incited to movement. The course of the sea unmarked as they are, are within each colony's limit, their habitual pathways. An unerring capacity in the fish for finding its own river may be more than that which guides the hermit-crab to the natica. The latter goes to hide its sensitive body, with an apparent nervous trepidation at its unprotected condition. The former, with an uneasiness of body from the functional changes it is undergoing, is impelled to activity. The transmitted habit of ascending the stream is, as it were, blended and alloyed with the substance of the nerves, and roused by its condition, carries it, without conscious purpose into the river of its progenitors and its own. The impulses of the fish are only in a slightly more complicated series than those of the crab. That it should be the instinct for a specific stream, established through inheritance of many generations, is easier to understand than that it is a sort of memory or the place of its immature life, as the theory of fish-culture makes it, and as observation seems to s

After the adoption of a platform, the convention adjourned sine die. It was one of the ablest bodies of Democrats ever assembled in the State.

THE PLATFORM.

The following is the platform adopted at the Harrisburg Convention:

RESOLVED, First, That the Democratic party of Pennsylvania in convention assembled renew our vows of fidelity to the fundamental principles proclaimed and practiced by the illustrious men who settled our free institutions and founded the Democratic party to preserve and protect them.

Second, That the just powers of the Federal Union, the rights of the States and the liberties of the people are vital parts of one harmonious system, and to save each part in its whole constitutional vigor is to "save the life of the nation."

Third, That the Democratic party maintains, as it ever has maintained, that the military are and ought to be in all things subordinate to the civil authorities. It denies, as it ever has denied, the right of the Federal administration to keep on foot at the general expense a standing army to invade the States for political purposes, without regard to constitutional restrictions, to control the people at the polls, to protect and encourage fraudulent counts of the votes, or to inaugurate candidates rejected by the majority.

Fourth, That the right of a free ballot is the right preservative of all rights, the only means of peacefully redressing grievances and reforming abuses. The presence at the polls of a regular military force and of a host of hireling officials, claiming the power to arrest and imprison citizens without warrant or hearing, destroys all freedom of elections and upturns the very foundation of self-government. We call upon all good citizens to aid us in preserving our institutions from destruction by these imperial methods of supervising the right of suffrage and coercing the popular will by keeping the way to the ballot-box open and free, as it was to our fathers; in removing the army to a safe distance when the people assemble to express their sovereign pleasure at the polls and in securing obedience to their will when legally expressed by their votes.

Fifth, That Rutherford B. Hayes having been placed in power against the well-known and legally-expressed will of the people, is the representative of a conspiracy only and his claim of the right to surround the ballot-boxes with troops and deputy marshals to intimidate and obstruct the elections, and his unprecedented use of the veto to maintain this, is an insult and a menace to the country.

Sixth, That the Democratic party, as of old, favors a constitutional currency of gold and silver and of paper convertible into coin.

Seventh, That we are opposed to the system of subsidies by the General Government under which, during the period of Republican ascendancy, political rings and corporations profited at the people's expense, and to any appropriations of the public moneys or the public credit to any objects but the public service. The reforms and economies enforced by the Democratic party since its advent to power in Congress have saved to the people many millions of dollars and we believe that a like result would follow its restoration to power in the State of Pennsylvania.

Eighth, That the Democratic party, being the natural friend of the workingman and having throughout its history stood between him and oppression, renew its expression of sympathy with labor and its promise of protection to its rights.

Ninth, That we look with alarm and apprehension upon the pretensions of the great transportation companies to be above the fundamental law of this Commonwealth which governs all else within our borders, and until they accept the constitution of '73 in good faith they should remain objects of the utmost vigilance and jealousy of both Legislature and people.

Tenth, That the recent attempt, under the personal direction of ruling Republican leaders, to debauch the Legislature by wholesale bribery and corruption and to take from the Commonwealth four millions of dollars, for which its liability had never been ascertained, is a fresh and alarming evidence of the aggressiveness of the political ring, and should receive the signal condemnation of the people at the polls.

Eleventh, That the great fraud 1876-77, by which, upon a false count of the electoral votes of three States, the candidate defeated at the polls was seated in the Presidential chair, and, for the first time in American history, the will of the people was set aside under a threat of military force, was the most deadly blow ever aimed at our system of representative government. To preserve the country from the horrors of a civil war the Democratic party submitted for the time in firm and patriotic faith that the people would peacefully redress the great wrong and signally rebuke the dark crime when they should come to vote in 1880.

That issue precedes and dwarfs every other. It imposes a more sacred duty upon the people of the Union than ever addressed the consciences of a nation of freemen.

THE BRIBERS SENTENCED.

The Board of Pardons convened on last Friday, and after a short session recommended the pardon of Kemble and the other riot bill bribers from that portion of the sentence which consigned them to the peaitentiary for one year. The Governor at once signed the pardons and the prisoners were released. They paid the fines of one thousand dollars each and costs. They are disqualified from ever holding any office of trust or profit under the commonwealth. The board undertakes to excuse themselves on the ground that the court exceeded its authority in sentencing to labor in the penitentiary, but this is too attenuated. The board is composed of Republicans, and they were governed by partisan motives rather than by a desire to correct a mistake of the court. How long will the people of this State keep in power a party whose officers make a farce of the laws?

PROCEEDINGS OF THE 11th CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION

TO THE STATE CONVENTION.

The delegation assembled at 10 o'clock in the evening of Tuesday, April 27 at the rooms of Judge Broadhead, at the Bolton House in Harrisburg.

There appeared at the conference the following named delegates.

Montour—H. H. Leisenring (Senatorial.) Peter McCann, representative.

Columbia—John M. Clark, John G. Freeze.

Carbon—E. P. Williams, A. G. Brodhead.

Monroe—Isaac Case.

Pike—J. D. Biddis Senatorial C. W. Bull Representative.

Luzerne—J. M. Day, M. W. Brittain.

Lackawanna—A. B. Dunning, F. A. Beamish.

On motion Hon. A. G. Brodhead was chosen chairman; and John G. Freeze was elected Secretary.

After some discussion as to the number of Representatives those portions of Luzerne and Lackawanna lying within the Congressional district, were entitled to in the conference, and in view of the fact that there were among them contesting delegations; On motion of Mr. Biddis of Pike, a committee of three was appointed by the chair, to consider the subject and report the next morning at 9 o'clock. The Chair appointed Mr. Biddis of Pike, Mr. Freeze of Columbia, and Mr. Case of Monroe.

The committee met and after considering the matter very carefully, unanimously agreed to report the following resolutions.

Resolved—That we recommend the adoption of the following rule as the guide for the present and future conferences of this nature, to wit—That the territory of Luzerne county lying within the 11th district shall be allowed one representative in this conference, in addition to the Representative from the 4th [Legislative] district; and the territory of Lackawanna lying within it shall be allowed one—The said Representatives to be chosen by the delegation of the counties respectively, without regard to residence in the district.

After full consideration, discussion and interchange of views in the delegation, the resolution was adopted. Whereupon Mr. Day and Mr. Britain were admitted from Luzerne, and Mr Dunning was agreed upon to represent Lackawanna, and was admitted to a seat, Mr. Beamish retiring.

On motion the Conference proceeded to choose delegates to the Democratic National Convention. And a ballot being taken, David Lowenberg of Columbia, Charles B. Staples of Monroe, were duly elected.

For elector in 11th district Adam Gerringer of Montour was chosen.

On motion the Conference adjourned.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C. May. 4th 1880.

The views of two well informed Democrats, on the subject of "early adjournment," are published this morning. Senator West gives June 1st as the probable day, and Representative Blackburn July 15th.

The National Blaine Bureau claims between ninety and one hundred of the Chicago delegates to be chosen this week, for their favorite. The friends of Mr. Blaine here make no concealment of their belief that Grant, if nominated, will be beaten.

Up to this writing no vote of the immediate dificiency bill has been sent to the House by Mr. Hayes, but it was stated on Saturday night that the paper was already signed. Mr. Hayes was represented as favoring a division of the special deputies between the political parties, but as being dissatisfied with the means by which the bill proposed to bring about the division. In short he had the same view of the subject as Ensign Stibbins had of the Maine law. The first elaborate bill of the session for the encouragement of American commerce was introduced by Senator Williams of Kentucky yesterday. It proposes a liberal payment for the carrying of ocean mails, and to pay $25 000 per year to American ship owners for each iron or steel screw steamship of 300 tons built and owned in the United States. A bill for substantially the same purposes will soon be reported from the House Committee on postal affairs, but neither of them will probably receive final action at this session.

Representative Ellis of Louisiana presents a bill directing the Post Master General to purchase or construct a telegraph line between Boston and other eastern cities, and Washington, to be used by the people under government direction, as an experiment, at low rates for transmission of messages, money &c,

Senator Hamlin did not get through the Senate yesterday his bill on the subject of claims of our citizens against Nicaragua. the bill is designed to put energy into the administration in its work of negotiating a treaty with Nicaragua. But there is no objection to the bill, and it will pass whenever called up again.

The commerce committee's eight millions for River and Harbor improvements will probably swell to ten millions in the House. In practical action on this bill the proposed plan to allow the executive to veto parts of a measure would work well. For the two or three millions generally appropriated for purposes of public utility there is at least twice as much wasted.

HILTON.

Hon. Amos C. Noyes yesterday closed his offical term as two years State Treasurer of Pennsylvania. In the discharge of his responsible trust Col. Noyes has been faithful to the best interests of the commonwealth and has fully justified the high confidence reposed in his integrity. The books of his office have always been open to public inspection and there has been no concealment about the operations of the treasury. His clerks have been corteous and assiduous in attention to their duties Col. Noyes will be attended in his retirement to private life by the best wishes of his fellow citizens of all parties.—Patriot of May 4th.

The Candidates.

George Augustus Jenks, the Democratic candidate for Supreme Judge, is only forty-four years of age. He was born in Punxsatawney, Jefferson county, Pa., March 26, 1836, and has resided in Jefferson all his life. He learned the carpenters and joiner's trade and worked at it for three years, but quit the carpenter's bench to obtain a collegiate education. While fitting himself for college he taught school and was thus engaged for eighteen months. Entering Jefferson College he was graduated thence in August, 1858. Choosing the law as his profession he studied privately and was admitted to the bar February 16, 1859. Ever since that date he has been engaged in active practice and has attained high rank as a lawyer. Until 1874 he never held any office, expept that he was a School Director and member of the Town Council of Brookville. In that year he was nominated and elected to Congress as a Democrat from the Twenty-fifth district, composed of the counties of Armstrong, Clarion, Forest, Indiana and Jefferson. In this election he received 11,627 votes against 11,109 for General Harry White. Mr. Jenks, in a single term of Congressional life, became a man of mark, his sound common sense and legal ability commanding almost immediate recognition. When the Electoral Commission was formed he was chosen by his Democratic colleagues as one of the counsel to represent the Tilden case before that body and his argument was commended as a model of forensic eloquence, but even more notable for compression of facts and deductions in small compass. He spoke without a note, but was almost the only one of the many lawyers who addressd the commission to confine himself strictly to the small time allotted and yet present a complete argument. Since he left Congress, Mr. Jenks has devoted himself to the law, but was in 1878 strongly supported as a candidate for Governor in the convention which nominated Andrew H. Dill. Mr. Jenks was married January 3, 1860, to Mary A. Mabon. Politically, in his own words, he has been "a Democrat since birth, as were my ancestors before me."

ROBERT P. DECHERT.

Col. Robert Porter Dechert, the Democratic nominee for Auditor General, was born in Reading August 16, 1842, his father being Elijah Dechert a lawyer of that city. Colonel Dechert is a grandson of Judge Robert Porter, whose two brothers were Ex-Governor David R. Porter and J. Madison Porter, Secretary of War under Tyler. Col. Dechert came to this city while in his tenth year. He graduated from the Central High School when eighteen years of age, and entered a course of law studies in the office of his brother, Henry M. Dechert. On the breaking out of the war of the rebellion he entered the army as Sergeant Major of the Twenty-ninth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, Colonel John K. Murphy. With his regiment he took part in the campaign of the Shenandoah Valley, and participated in many battles of the Army of the Potomac. In the famous "march to the sea" Colonel Dechert was assistant adjutant general to General Slocum, commanding the Army of Georgia. He was promoted repeatedly for gallant services in the field, and at the close of the war had reached the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was admitted to the bar in 1867 and in the following year was appointed assistant to District Attorney Furman Sheppard. He was elected in 1870 State Senator from the First district for an unexpired term, overcoming the usual heavy Republican majority of the district. On the expiration of his term as Senator he resumed his position as Assistant District Attorney. When Mr. Hagert was elected District Attorney Colonel Dechert declined a reappointment, and has since devoted himself to law practice. He has taken much interest in military matters, and was last year elected Colonel of the Second Regiment.

Gen. Hancock and the Presidency.

There are these points in Hancock's favor.

1. He is a Democrat, and in a normal condition of affairs a majority of the people of the republic are and always have been democrats. Hancock's nomination would do more than anything else we can think of to restore political affairs in this country to what we may term their normal condition.

2. Hancock was a soldier of the Union. The people will feel assured that if he is elected nothing which has been gained in the war will be surrendered.

3. Two generations of Hancock's ancestors fought the battles of the republic. The grandson of a soldier of the revolution will maintain intact the government of the republic. No experiments with it will be attempted in his time. We count the fact that Hancock is of the "old stock" as largely in his favor.

4. If Hancock should be elected, nobody will have any fear least he will not willingly surrender the powers of his office to the people four years after his election, and with gratitude to his countrymen. Can as much be said of Grant, who has been President for eight years, and who looks on quietly while politicians are plotting and scheming to secure for him a further lease of power? Is he grateful for honors equal to those conferred on Washington.

5. Hancock will carry every southern state. Nobody disputes this. He can carry the state of New York, for it is a democratic state, and is there a democrat in the state of New York who will not vote for Hancock? As against Grant tens of thousands of republicans will stay away from the polls, or will vote directly for Hancock. Can as much as this be said of any other citizen named in connection with the democratic nomination.

We agree with Dana that Hancock is the strongest candidate that can be named against any candidate except Grant the republicans can name. As against Grant, General Hancock is the one candidate whose nomination will be an equivalent to an election.

If the democrats want to win, and want nothing else, they have got the game in their own hands. There is no better name for a president than Hancock—the name which stands first on the signatures to the Declaration of Independence.—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

The Last of his Race.

Bruce, the Colored Senator from Mississippi, alluding to the time when he should retire from the Senate pathetically said: "I believe that I am the last of my race that will ever occupy a seat in this branch of the Federal Government."

No doubt, the words of the Senator will prove to be correct. The republican party, ever anxious for the negro vote, and always ready to make the most glowing promises, no more nominates them to important offices. The leaders of that party will not even associate with them, not even with Senator Bruce himself, an able, sensible and excellent man, wealthy and refined, and with a beautiful and cultivated wife. Never was a race of people so cruelly disappointed. Let them remember that in all respects they were to be the white man's social and political equal. They were to be judges, members of congress, and senators. Has all this except in a few instances, been realized? Let the melancholy and prophetic words of Senator Bruce be the answer, and a mournful commentary upon the broken promises of the republican party.—Genius of Liberty.

TRIAL OF EDWARD CURLEY.

On the opening of Court on Wednesday morning, Edward Curley, charged with the murder of John Gunning in Centralia, was brought into court and arraigned by the District Attorney. The indictment was read to him, and he was asked what he had to say to the same, guilty or not guilty, to which he replied "not guilty." District Attorney Little and Hon. F. W. Hughes appeared as counsel for the Commonwealth and the prisoner was represented by C. R. Buckalew, J. G. Freeze, C. B. Brockway and William Bryson. Mrs Curley and a little son and daughter sat by the side of the prisoner.

Some delay was caused in opening the case by the fact that an attachment was sent out on Tuesday for several witnesses of the defendant, living at Centralia, and had not been returned on Wednesday morning. The defence therefore hesitated about going to trial until the attachment was heard from.

On Tuesday morning a jury was chosen. About an hour and a half was occupied in the selection of the jury. They are as follows: N. S. Pursell, Bloom; J. P. Hess, Jackson; C. S. Furman, Bloom; Wesley Ash, Briarcreek; William A. Price, Lot Johnson, Thomas Ates, Mifflin; William Harlan, Pine; John McMichael, Fishingcreek; James Long, Benton; H. H. Brown, Scott. The usual formula was gone through with, each juror being sworn to make true answers, and was then asked by the District Attorney whether he had conscientious scruples against capital punishment, and then by the defense whether an opinion had been formed as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. Forty-four persons were called before the jury was filled. The jury were sworn and, the case opened by District Attorney Little, who stated the facts that the commonwealth expected to prove. The first witness is on the stand as we go to press.

SUGARLOAF ITEMS.

The people here are in good spirits: the farmers have been at work for some time, at what they expect to reap the reward of in the gathering time.

The prophets are prophesying large abundance of fruit. They have been examining the buds, and they say, they see, that the fruit buds are in a splendid condition.

The fishermen are patiently waiting a heavy fall of water and warm weather. The creek being dry last fall, the fish perished in large quantities. Without a freshet not many trout can reach the mountains.

The weather is quite cold yet. On the morning of the 28th ult., there was visible a heavy frost and on the 30th ult. it snowed.

On Sunday morning, the 25th ult., about one o'clock, Mr. Alonzo B. Albertson was aroused from slumber by a neighbor with a cry of fire. His saw mill was then enveloped in flames. The cause of the fire is unknown. It might have arisen from overheating of the gudgeons or it may have originated from a slab-pile that was burning near by. Mr. Albertson is talking about building up the mill again.

LITTLE JOE.

All Sorts.

Ten little candidates standing in a line;
Evarts didn't boom and so there were nine.
Nine little candidates—one a heavy weight;
Davis smashed his fence; then there were eight.
Eight little candidates for political heaven;
Kelly kicked Sammy and then there were seven.
Seven little candidates playing all their tricks;
Seymour declined and then there were six.
Six little candidates all kicking and alive;
Blaine was Mullinzaned and then there were five.
Five little candidates for whom people jaw;
Grant was scratched and then there was four.
Four little candidates running merrily;
Hendricks dushed out and then there were three.
Three little candidates, good men and true;
Sherman didn't draw and then there were two.
Two little candidates trying hard to run;
Bayard didn't run and then there was one.
One little candidate was left in the game,
But not a living soul could tell the fellow's name.

On Saturday afternoon while the men were engaged in diggirg the ditch for the water pipe on Market street in front of the residence of C. G. Barkley, the earth caved in from the top, seriously injuring Robert Morris and Henry Hower, both being bruised, and the latter having his arm broken. The ditch was eight or nine feet deep at that point in order to get the pipe under the culvert that crosses Market street. Both men are getting along nicely, and Morris was able to be about on Tuesday. It was a narrow escape, and might have resulted in death.

Samuel B. Cressman, of the Montour House, Danville, has leased the Lake House at Spring Lake, Monmouth county, New Jersey, and will open it on the 29th inst. He is well known here, and persons desiring a pleasant visit cannot do better than give him their patronage. We regret that we cannot accept the invitation to be present at the opening.

LICENSES.

On Wednesday afternoon the court heard the applications for licenses. All the licenses asked for were granted except the following: Jacob L. Girton, Peter Gross, of Bloomsburg, against which protests were filed, and B. R. Yetter, of Main township, there being an imperfection in the bond. Monday morning next was fixed for a hearing in the first two cases, and the bond directed to be corrected in the third case.

THAT INJUNCTION.

Thursday, of last week, was the day fixed for the hearing of the application for an injunction against the Water Company and its contractor, but owing to the absence of Col. Freeze, counsel for the Water Company, it was continued until Saturday. On that day Judge Rockefeller, of Northumberland county heard the case, Judge Elwell being a tax-payer of the town of Bloomsburg, and a near relative being a member of the board of directors of the defendant. Affidavits were read and arguments made by J. B. Robison solicitor for the plaintiff, and by Col. Freeze for the Water Company and Col. Knorr for Mr. Birkinbine. Among the affidavits are those of four members of the Town Council, a majority, saying that they believe the work is being properly done. Under this state of facts, who is it that is asking for an injunction? Judge Rockefeller took the papers and promised an early decision.

OBITUARY.

COL. CLARENCE O. JACKSON.

On Tuesday last it was with profound grief that our people learned of the unexpected death of Col. Jackson, of Berwick. He had just retired to bed on Monday evening, apparently in good health, and died without a word or struggle. He was 38 years old last March. His funeral took place on Thursday and was attended by hundreds from all sections of the country.

As a soldier his history is that of his brave regiment which re-nenged the retreat from Bath with its just delivered and unfirable Belgian muskets, by its refusal to retreat at Winchester when under Shields.

He belonged to Company H, of the 84th regiment, and was mustered into service August 24, 1862. He was promoted from 2nd to 1st Lieutenant, January 18, 1863, to Captain, July 1st, 1863; wounded and captured at Chancellorsville, Va., May 3rd, 1863; transferred to Company H., 57th regiment, January 13, 1865, and discharged by special orders March 10th, 1865. Such, in brief, is a history of his formal record. Its actual one would involve a volume, but is recorded in the hearts of his surviving comrades. At the time of his death he was an aid on Gov. Hoyt's staff.

As a politician, he has been an active, liberal Republican, tolerant to all, but adhesive to his organization when he believed vital questions were at stake. He was honored with nominations for office in this county, and at times was the Chairman of the Republican organization.

On Saturday last the writer sent him a letter of invitation to address our citizens on Decoration Day. The reply came the evening of his death that he could not attend "as he expected to leave for Chicago the last week in May." He had been selected as a delegate to the Republican National Convention.

He was a graduate of Dickinson college, and possessed fine literary talents. The most of our readers have heard him as an orator, and fully appreciated his worth. He was an excellent business man, and it will be impossible to replace his loss to the large firm of which he was chief. He had hosts of friends among all classes and parties, by whom his sudden death will be deeply mourned.

Further particulars—From our Berwick Correspondent.

On Tuesday morning the sad news flashed through the town, that Col. Jackson had died during the night. He retired at an early hour on Monday evening, not in very good health, and at about ten o'clock was seized with an apoplectic fit, terminating in his death in less than fifteen minutes. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn him.

He was born March 25th, 1842, in Berwick. At the age of 14 he entered Dickinson Seminary, at Williamsport, where he graduated at the end of two years with honors. Two years later, when only 18, he graduated at Dickinson College, Carlisle, where he was respected and loved by his classmates and teachers.

Less than two years he enjoyed the quiet of home, and then yielded to his country's call; and in 1862 joined the 84th Regiment as Lieutenant of Company H., which was formed in Berwick. Later he became 1st Lieutenant of the company. At the battle of Chancellorsville he was taken prisoner and conveyed to Libby Prison, from whence he escaped with several companions, but was pursued and hunted down by the blood-hounds of the enemy, and again lodged in prison, where he remained until released by an exchange which was effected about a year after his attempted escape. In July of '63 he was promoted to a captaincy, which position he honorably filled to the end of the war. In the battle of the Wilderness he was again one of the unfortunates. Wounded, he was captured and once more the walls of Libby frowned upon him. Shortly after he was taken with 600 Union officers to Charleston where he was under fire of the Union batteries, poured into the city from Moultrie. From this place he was taken to Columbia, where he and his comrades languished with only the sky for a canopy, burrowing in the ground at times for protection from the cold. Thus he passed through all the varied scenes of war, fearless to rashness almost, always generous and honorable.

At the time of his death he was Vice President and general manager of the firm of Jackson & Woodin Manufacturing Co., president of the rolling mill a member of the firms Jackson, Woodin & Jackson, and Jackson Bro's & Crispin, a director of the First National Bank, a trustee of Dickinson College and also of the Normal School of Bloomsburg, a director of the schools of this town, and a trustee of the M. E. Church. He was also a member of Governor Hoyt's staff, in the capacity of Quartermaster General.

His death has cast a gloom over Berwick, that will not be lifted until time will have softened the sorrow caused by the untimely visit of death. Sabbath seems to reign during these few days, for the familiar sounds from the shops and rolling mills are hushed in silence. The soldier comrades speak of him with glistening eye, giving token to the sorrow they feel for the loss of their friend and comrade. All loved him for they knew he had their welfare at heart. The firms with which he was connected have lost an energetic, honest business associate; the church, an earnest and liberal supporter; the town, a progressive and accomplished citizen; the country an able and valiant soldier and patriot; and saddest of all, the family, a loving and indulgent father and husband. It is sad that one so young, comparatively, should die. There was yet much for him to do in life, and a bright future might have been his. But, now his book is closed and lifeless he lies where his presence was wont to cheer.

"How beautiful in death
The soldier's cross appears,
Embalmed by fond affection's breath
And bathed in woman's tears."

From the Sturgis, Mich., Weekly: Mr. John Brast, living in Sherman township, informed us a few days ago that his feet had been so terribly frost-bitten that he could hardly stand the pains caused thereby. He happened to think of St. Jacob's Oil—which he always keeps handy—rubbed his feet twice with the remedy and the pain disappeared entirely. He not only values St. Jacob's Oil as an unexcelled remedy for a great many other painful diseases, to which mankind is subject, but he also asserts that it is really invaluable for the many diseases horses and stock are subject to, and which so often play havoc with the prospects of the farmer and stock-raiser.

People who have a desire to be humbugged have been furnished with opportunities during the past week. A man on the street sells muriatic acid for the cure of corns, warts, &c., for 25 cents a small bottle, a substance worth about 5 cents a pound. The doctors say it is a dangerous article to have lying around. Another man with a banjo puts a greenback in a small pack of soap and then after mixing the pack with a number of others, offers to sell five of the packs for a dollar, with a chance of getting the greenback. This is clearly gambling, and is strictly prohibited by law, and ought to be stopped by the authorities.

WHAT AN OLD PHYSICIAN SAYS.—In a practice of more than 30 years, I have never found a curative equal to the great Mexican remedy, Herbaline Bitters. Having used but two bottles I am entirely relieved of a chronic affection of the stomach and bowels of seven years standing. I regard it as the best health restoring agent in the world.

C. H. Hampton, Vevay, Ind.

J. C. Townsend, agent for D. M. Osborne & Co., had a fine exhibition of agricultural implements on the street during the week. Fred. Hagenbuch and John Wolf agents for other companies, also displayed some very fine machinery.

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., MARSHALL, MICH.

Will send their celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belts to the afflicted upon 30 days trial. Speedy cures guaranteed. They mean what they say. Write to them without delay. Nov. 21-1y.

W. C. Robison, of Espy, agent for the Cincinnati wagons had a number of vehicles on exhibition in front of the Court House this week. Those wagons are well made and very cheap.

The Annual Meeting of the Columbia County Agricultural Society will be held in the Opera House, Bloomsburg on Saturday, May 15th, at one o'clock p. m. The election of officers, and a proposition to amend the charter will be a part of the business. The present committee will meet on same day at 9 o'clock, a. m.

FRED. B. HARTMAN,
April 30 2w Secretary.

An Acre of Onions.

Few farmers seem to realize the fact that as much money can be obtained from an acre of land in onions as from a forty-acre farm devoted to the usual crop. At present prime onions are worth $4 per barrel by the car-load, and two hundred and fifty barrels may be, and not unfrequently are produced from an acre of land. Let not one, however expect to realize a thousand dollars from an acre of onions who does not pay the best attention to the crop. To begin with, land naturally adapted to producing the crop should be selected. Experiments made in the eastern states, where large quantities of onions are raised for the southern market show that there is no better soil for onions than that of a reclaimed bog. Of course the land must be well drained and the surface soil decomposed by exposure to the action of the atmosphere. Most of our black prairie soils are suitable to the production of onions if they are rightly treated. The turf must become entirely rotted and mixed with the earth below. Land that has been in pasture for several years is easily prepared for a crop of onions, as the turf is comparatively thin, while the soil is quite free from weeds. That portion of a pasture in which cattle and sheep lie at night may be converted into an onion patch to an excellent advantage.

A field for onions should be nearly level. If there are elevations in it the soil on them will be likely to wash away, carrying off the seed before it germinates, or leaving part of the onions exposed to the sun. A piece of land intended for onions should be entirely free from seeds of weeds in the start and there should be a determination on the part of the grower to allow none to attain any considerable size. Absolutely clever culture is essential to producing a paying crop of onions. Neglect in this matter will cause a vast amount of work, which will not, after all, insure a good crop of onions. A field of onions can not be neglected on account of a demand for labor on other parts of the farm. Unless a farmer has help that can attend to his field of onions during the season of plowing corn cutting grass, and harvesting grains, it will be better not to attempt to raise the crop at all. The care of onions, however calls for light work, which which may be chiefly performed by old men partial invalids, women and children. Persons who cannot perform heavy work on the farm may engage in onion raising to excellent advantage.

It is useless to undertake to raise a paying crop of onions on land that is very highly manured. From thirty to fifty loads of manure should be applied to an acre of land designed for producing this crop. It should be well rotted and free from the seed of grass and weeds. Unleached ashes form a valuable addition to composted stable manure. After a piece of land has been prepared for onions it is best to continue the crop for a series of years. As onions are gross feeders it will, of course, be necessary to apply a coating of manure every season. The soil of an onion field should be well pulverized and the manure thoroughly incorporated with it. After it is plowed and harrowed a roller should be used for crushing the lumps.

Many growers employ a hand rake for thinning the soil before the seed is sown. About four pounds of seed are required for an acre. It should be the product of the previous season. The seed may be tested by counting out a certain number and placing them on some moist cotton laid in a saucer. If good, it will germinate in three or four days. The seed should be sown as early in the spring as it is possible to prepare the land. Growers who aim to get the largest yield from a given amount of land allow only the space of a foot between the rows. There is a drill which plants two rows of onion seed at once. If sown by hand one seed should be dropped every inch. In order to mark the rows it is well to drop a radish seed every five or six inches. The radishes will grow very rapidly, and will be large enough to pull before the onions attain sufficient size to be injured by their presence. If there is no market for radishes in the vicinity, cabbage plants may be raised in their place. When of sufficient size they may be pulled and transplanted.

The cultivation of onions must be chiefly performed by means of hand tools. The shuffle hoe is the best implement for doing most of the work. It should be of the best quality, and great pains should be taken to keep it clean and sharp. After the plants are about four inches high they may be thinned so that each has a space of about three inches in which to grow. Some growers who seek to raise very large crops allow three onions to grow in the space of six inches. Of course they crowd each other after they have become of nearly full size, but this thick setting is necessary to secure the maxim yield. After they are thinned to the proper distance nothing is required by way of cultivation except to keep the soil light and free from weeds.—Chicago Times.

IT WAS THE CAT.

A bashful young peasant was greatly captivated by the charms of a pretty girl in his own station in life; he was exceedingly anxious to ask her to marry him, and had often resolved to do so, but so far his courage had always failed him when the opportunity arrived. However, one night he resolved to hear his fate in spite of his modesty, so he started off to spend the evening with her. When he arrived, to his joy her parents were from home, and she was seated knitting at the kitchen fire, with a big gray cat lying at her feet. Jamie sat down beside her, but not a word could he say, till, at the end of half an hour, he inwardly resolved to 'finish this business,' so acting on a 'happy thought' he placed the cat upon his knee and stammered forth: 'Pussy, ask Lizzie will she marry me?' Lizzie blushed and smiled, but managed to say: 'Pussy, tell Jamie I'll take him.'

The seven wonders of the world were: The pyramids of Egypt, the hanging gardens of Babylon, the tomb of Mausolos, the temple of Diana at Ephesus, the colossus of Rhodes, the statue of Zeus by Phidias, and the palace of Cyrus that was cemented with gold. But all these wonders, excepting pyramids, have gone out of commission.

It is estimated that about 9,000 miles of new railroads are now under contract, and it is thought by men in position to know that more miles of railroad will be built during 1880 in the United States than during any year before.

CATARRH

IS IT CURABLE?

THOSE who have suffered from the various and complicated forms of disease commonly known by Catarrh, and have tried many remedies only to be disappointed without relief or cure, would be slow to trust to anything without positive assurance that it was worthy confidence. And well they may be, for no disease that can be mentioned is so universally prevalent and so attractive to health as Catarrh. Bronchitis, Asthma, Coughs, and serious and frequently fatal affections of the lungs follow, in many instances, a case of simple but neglected Catarrh. Other sympathetic affections, for such it is, impaired eyesight, and loss of smell, may be referred to as minor but nevertheless serious results of neglected Catarrh, bad enough in themselves, but as tending onward with the more dangerous affections of the throat and lungs likely to follow.

IT CAN BE CURED.

It can be cured. There is no doubt about it. The immediate relief afforded by DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY in the first stages of what may follow a persistent use of this remedy. The hard, incrusted matter that has collected in the nasal passages is loosened, and finally disappears, the inflammation and inflammatory disease and heated, the entire membranous lining of the head are cleansed and purified. Quite unlike any other catarrh remedy, its action is that of a non-irritating agent, destroying in its course through the system the germ poison, the destructive agent in catarrhal diseases.

A COMPLICATED CASE.

Gentlemen,—My case is briefly as follows: I have had Catarrh for ten years, each year with increasing severity, at this season I am obliged to take it through one nostril. I have droppings in the throat, a very bad cough, asthma so bad as to be obliged to take a remedy for it at night before I can get any rest, pain in my face and eyes, and a constant dull pain in my head. My head was at times so full of catarrhal matter as to injure my mind for fear of losing it. I have to get up frequently in the night to clear it and my throat before I could sleep. Every one of these distressing symptoms has disappeared under the use of, but quite three bottles of SAGE'S REMEDY CURE. My hearing is fully restored, I have no asthmatic symptoms, sufficient enough, no droppings in the throat, no headache, and in every way better health than for ten years. I feel that I owe my life to the use of the CURE. I can say positively that you can do as you please as to appetite, on my kidneys, and, in fact, every part of my system, when using SAGE'S REMEDY, be in my case is wholly the effect of the RADICAL CURE.

Very respectfully, C. B. LAWRENCE.
